THIS IS WAR

This Week - 01/14/2009

Thirty Seconds to Mars is back in the rehearsal studio preparing for their upcoming Into the Wild World Tour, but there are many important causes around the globe that still need attention.

On Tuesday Haiti was struck by the largest earthquake ever recorded in the region.

This earthquake hit a major population center and was very devastating to the infrastructure. If you are interested in supporting the hundreds of thousands of victims of this natural disaster, take a moment to look at the options we have outlined below.

UNICEF

UNICEF is urgently appealing for emergency assistance to aid victims of a devastating earthquake that rocked Haiti. Funds are needed to provide safe water, temporary shelter systems and medical supplies. UNICEF's country office in Haiti and the regional office located in Panama has deployed emergency teams to assess the situation and determine what the additional emergency needs are for the people of Haiti.

To donate to the ongoing emergency relief efforts in Haiti and the Caribbean region, please visit: www.unicefusa.org/haitiquake or call 1-800-4UNICEF.

OXFAM

Oxfam is working to respond to the devastation that has occurred. It is anticipated that the needs of survivors will certainly outstrip resources. Please spread the word of the special fund that Oxfam has created, Haiti Earthquake Response Fund.

Please donate to the Haiti Earthquake Response Fund:
